Schenkerwine – The direct route from cellar to Customers

There are many facets in the wine trade; one of these is being able to access good quality wines in far away regions. Wine regions in European countries such as Italy, France, and Spain are well known, but the winemakers of the "New World" countries, such as Chile, Australia, the United States, and South Africa have established excellent reputations too. In all of these countries, Schenker, an expert in wine logistics, is present in local branches. Importers view wine not only as a luxury item, but also as a delicate and sensitive commodity. Schenker has the same philosophy. It is important to move wine and spirits safely and on time from the producing countries to their destination, and also to provide flexible warehousing and distribution solutions to the importers. Schenker offers sophisticated solutions, not only with international transport networks, but also with logistics centers wherever required. Schenker has a global presence, which means that all qualified Schenker personnel offer competence and commitment within the international network of this leading logistics company. As part of the integrated logistics services, Schenker offers wine merchants several additional value added services, including:

- Temperature controlled storage in Schenker-owned logistics centers.
- Consolidation of shipments from different wine growing areas.
- Special projects.
- Pick and pack.
- Sample packing.

Schenker offers wine wholesalers services, which far exceed the simple planning and execution of transportation and logistics services. The company offers control of commercial invoices, administrative documentation and all customers-and insurance-related requirements. With a turnover of 13.2 billion euros, 55,000 employees and approximately 1,500 branches. Schenker is one of the leading providers of integrated logistics services. Schenker offers transportation services by land, air, and ocean as well as comprehensive logistics solutions and "one-stop shop" supply chain management. Wine importers and merchants enjoy numerous benefits through Schenker's global competence. Schenker's global network has strategic branches in all overseas viticultural regions dealing with both air and ocean freight shipments to respective destinations.
